An Act respecting the estate of the late Charles Théodore Viau

[Assented to 26th March, 1901]

Preamble.

WHEREAS Dame Marie Emélie Deguise, widow of the late Charles Théodore Viau, in his lifetime manufacturer ; Jean Baptiste Deguise, book-keeper ; Joseph Viau, manufacturer ; Louis Deguise, bank manager, and Joseph Louis Coutlée, notary, all of Montreal, in their qualities of testamentary executors, fiduciary legatees and administrators under the will of the said Charles Théodore Viau, have, by their petition, represented :

That, by his will made before Mtre. V. Lamarche, notary, in Montreal, on the 27th July, 1893, the said C. T. Viau created a substitution which will open only at the death of the survivor of his children in the first degree, and that he established a trust to last till that time, desiring that his testamentary executors should also be fiduciary legatees and administrators of his estate, with all the powers conferred by the law respecting trusts and other powers in the will set forth ; that they are authorized to alienate the moveable and immoveable properties without any legal formality and without the intervention of anybody, as if they were the sole proprietors thereof ; that certain provisions of the will might be interpreted as giving the power to borrow, but that, nevertheless, it is to be feared that doubts may arise in this regard ;
